

Keeping finance flowing

When a London based, global debt finance company needed a new network system for their business they called in one of our 'through the channel' partners who subsequently brought us at MSV in to handle the project.

With offices around the world, connectivity was key for this business as was security with it being in the financial sector. Along with our partner, we implemented the project by designing a network system before installing it. We even handled the on-going support that was an essential part of the project.

In addition to the network itself, MSV were also responsible for the installation of a Citrix Cloud system and Azure Virtual machines, all important elements in this modern day, remote working world.

The work that MSV did enabled this company to carry on offering an important service within the financial debt sector meaning that their client businesses continued to operate through challenging times.
